SPORTING PARAGRAPHS.

The entire kennel of greyhounds belonging to the Duke of Leeds will be submitted to auction at the Barbican Repository on June 17th.

The following trial took place at Newmarket on Saturday:—A. Sadler's (senior) Treveller (Rickaby), 1; Coral Sea (Jelliss), 2; Riverton, 3. Distance—Five furlongs. Won by a length; a neck separated second and third.

Presiding at the annual general meeting of the Hunt Servants' Benefit Society, Lord Zetland said that, although his hunting days were over, his interest in the Society would remain as long as he lived. He thought it would be a great national calamity if hunting ceased.

The Turf is represented in the list of new baronets by Mr. W. J. Tatem, who is so well known in English racing circles and the owner of a number of horses, among them The Revenge and the colt by Bachelor's Double, out of Dark Dinah, who is one of the best two-year-olds of the present season.

Pommern, who won the June Stakes at Newmarket last week, has run his last race, and will join Mr. S. B. Joel's other stallions, Polymelus and Sunder, at the Maiden Erlegh Stud. Pommern's career on the Turf was a brilliant one, and by winning the Two Thousand Guineas, the New Derby, and the September Stakes, he can take rank with the winners of the "triple crown," despite the facts that the "New" Derby was a substitute for the great Epsom event, that the September Stakes took the place of the Doncaster St. Leger, and that both were decided at Newmarket. He has won seven races, of the total value of £15,616.

R.H.M.S. v. 10th R.D. FUSILIERS.

This match was played at Phoenix Park on Saturday, and resulted in a win for the Fusiliers by 91 runs. Captain Scott-Murray was top scorer with a stylishly gathered 44, while Lieutenant Wilson carried his bat for 23. Second Lieutenant Gorry (17), Corporal Preece (17), and Private Normington (15) also gave bright displays for their respective totals. Of the School representatives, only Holloway (17) and Mahony reached double figures, the last-named being not out 11. The small aggregate of the losers was due principally to the effective bowling of Corporal Preece, who kept an admirable length throughout. Scores:—

ST. ANDREW'S COLLEGE v. ST. COLUMBA'S

This match was played on Saturday at Donnybrook, and resulted in a win for St. Columba's College by six runs. The home team batted first, but Craig (20) and Patterson (17) alone made a stand against good bowling by King and Deane, and the innings closed for 49. St. Columba's fared but little better with the bat. Symes, however, played well for 22, and Stanton hit up 11, the innings yielding 55 runs. White and Rollins bowled finely for St. Andrew's, White taking four wickets and Rollins three. Score:—

Our Portrait is of Miss NELLIE THORNTON, whose case is given below.

Mrs. Thornton, of 79 Brighton street, Salford, Manchester, writes:—"I am sending a photo of my little girl, Nellie, who is now completely cured of Eczema by your Mixture. She was without healthy skin from head to foot, and could hardly bear to stand, sit, or lie down. I took her to the doctors, but she seemed to get no better. After six weeks I took her to a skin hospital, and I kept her under their treatment for five months. They gave me ointments for her, but they did her no good. She got worse. I then bought some 'Clarke's Blood Mixture' for her, and am now very thankful, for her life is due to the wonderful cure it has made of her."

CURED BY

If you suffer from any such diseases as Eczema, Scrofula, Bad Legs, Abscesses, Ulcers, Glandular Swellings, Boils, Pimples, Sores of any kind, Piles, Blood Poison, Rheumatism, Gout, &c., don't waste your time and money on useless lotions and messy ointments, which cannot get below the surface of the skin. What you want and what you must have to be permanently cured is a medicine that will thoroughly free the blood of the poisonous matter which alone is the true cause of all your suffering. Clarke's Blood Mixture is just such a medicine. It is composed of ingredients which quickly expel from the blood all impurities from whatever cause arising, and by rendering it clean and pure can be relied on to effect a complete and lasting cure.

Over 50 years' Success.

Pleasant to the taste.

MONDAY, JUNE 5, 1916.

Southern Unionists and Settlement.

We appreciate the cogency and solemnity of Mr. Asquith's appeal for an Irish settlement as deeply as any Irishman can appreciate them. We recognise the urgent necessity of removing all obstacles from the path of victory in the present war. We should like nothing better than to be able to eliminate ourselves for the moment, so far as Mr. Lloyd George's efforts are concerned—to abstain even from good words—if we could bring ourselves to feel that our duty lay in silence rather than in speech. But we can be silent no longer. The present position, as we understand it, is as follows: Mr. Lloyd George has formulated a scheme for the setting up, almost immediately, of an Irish Parliament in Dublin. The whole, or greater part, of Ulster is to be excluded from this scheme, and is to remain under the authority and protection of the Imperial Parliament. The Government proposes to be generous in the matter of finance, and few, or no, difficulties are expected in this direction. The scheme is to be submitted this week to a meeting of the Ulster Unionist Council, which is more likely to accept than to reject it. It is believed that the Nationalist Party has accepted it conditionally on the approval of a popular convention in Dublin. It seems to us that the necessity of this approval is the weakest link in Mr. Lloyd George's chain. Irish Nationalists want Home Rule, but they have always declared, with an earnestness which has always impressed us, that Home Rule without Ulster would be worthless. It remains to be seen whether, at this critical moment, Mr. Redmond will be able to induce the bulk of them to change their minds. His prestige and influence have been shaken by recent events, and he will have to deal with the intense dislike of the Nationalists of Ulster for any policy of exclusion. A Nationalist convention may treat an exclusion settlement as it treated the Irish Councils Bill, which also came to it with Mr. Redmond's imprimatur. This chance apart, it is not merely possible, but actually probable, that within a very few weeks an Act amending the present Home Rule Act by the exclusion of Ulster will be put on the Statute Book by agreement of all the Parliamentary parties of Great Britain and Ireland.

We have not changed our views about the exclusion of Ulster. We are still convinced that it would be the least desirable of all possible settlements of the Irish question. We shall accept it only under proof that it furnishes the only solution of a problem in which even greater interests than the highest interests of the whole Irish nation are concerned. If we are made to believe that the Irish difficulty is blocking victory in the field, and that it can only be cleared away by a Home Rule settlement which excludes Ulster, we shall accept that settlement, and we shall try loyally to make it a success. It will involve a bitter sacrifice, but the Unionists of the South of Ireland are inured to such sacrifices. We are not prepared, however, and we do not believe that those for whom we speak are prepared, to make any larger or more unquestioning sacrifice than the occasion demands. Let us assume two things—that an immediate settlement of the Irish question is a matter of vital necessity, and that the settlement of Home Rule, with Ulster excluded, is the only feasible settlement. On these assumptions we have a right to demand, and do demand, that the interests of the Unionists of the three southern provinces shall receive fair consideration. Up to the present we have not heard that they are receiving fair consideration, or any consideration at all. The Ulster Unionists and the Nationalist Parliamentary leaders are being consulted at every stage of the negotiations. We have not heard that Mr. Redmond has been invited to consider any fuller safeguards for southern Unionists than the miserably inadequate safeguards contained in the present Home Rule Act. The southern Unionists have wealth, education, and an undisputed patriotism. They will always be an influence in Irish life. We insist that their voice shall be heard in any settlement of the Irish question.

We do not think that southern Unionists realise the imminence of settlement, or the bleakness of their prospects under any settlement which does not give due consideration to their claims. It is stated on good authority, for instance, that the first Home Rule Parliament would be constituted from the present representatives of the three southern provinces at Westminster. This would mean that, with the exception of the two members for Dublin University, the southern Unionists would not return a single member to the Home Rule Parliament. They would be almost utterly excluded from the public life of Ireland. Has any suggestion been made to Mr. Lloyd George that, in these special circumstances, South County Dublin and certain other seats should be definitely assigned to representatives of the Unionist minority? We have no doubt that Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Redmond have taken the Irish Roman Catholic Hierarchy into their counsels. Has anybody consulted the Bishops and Representative Body of the Church of Ireland? The exclusion of Ulster would create many grave problems for that Church. It would find itself under two distinct forms of national government; the position of the northern Bishops would become an anomaly to which few Irish Churchmen have given thought. The southern Unionists have special problems of education. We have no fears for Trinity College, which, under any form of government, must remain the greatest and truest seat of learning in Ireland. We have no fears of religious persecution or of deliberate hostility to the Protestant minority. Nevertheless, that minority, with all its industrial and commercial interests, would find itself under the authority of a Parliament which would be elected mainly by an agricultural community. Safeguards, ample and clearly defined, are necessary if southern Unionists are to play a proper and useful part in an Ireland which will be divided politically and economically by the waters of the Boyne. It is their right and their duty to demand those safeguards now as a condition of an Irish settlement. It is their right and duty to insist that their destinies shall not be ordered for them without their consent, and even without their knowledge. No need of haste, however urgent, can justify a settlement that ignores the claims of any party in Ireland. A scheme that ignored the claims of the Unionists of the three southern provinces would invite disaster, and we shall resist any such scheme by every means in our power.

The Naval Battle.

The statement issued by the Admiralty last night confirms the nation in the happier view of last Wednesday's North Sea fight which reflection and every fresh item of news have suggested to everybody who was depressed by the first brief official announcement. Persons who saw only that first statement before they went to bed on Friday night were, not unnaturally, cast down by the plain, full report of British ships lost, understating, as we know now, the enemy's losses, and unaccompanied by any hint of the purpose or the measure of achievement of the Fleet. Even now all the circumstances of the action cannot be told, but we have a much better understanding of its general character. We have, too, some of the materials for a fairer comparison of the British and German losses, and, as to the latter, good grounds for the belief that far from the whole has yet been told. Indeed, the German reports, for all their appearance of frankness, contain statements which lay them open at once to suspicion of falsehood. They pretend, for example, that the battleship which they admit having lost was the Pommern, a vessel which we believe to have been destroyed in the Baltic some time ago. Our own sailors are convinced that the German battleship sunk on Wednesday was one of the Kaiser class, much more modern and valuable than the Pommern. The Admiralty's later information emboldens it to say that the German losses are heavier, both relatively and absolutely, than our own. Even the earlier information justified the view that they were heavier relatively. Mr. Churchill's welcome comment emphasises that point. The Admiralty, in its later estimates, counts among the German losses two battleships—and despite the German claim concerning the Warspite, we have lost no vessel of that class—two Dreadnought battle cruisers, two of the latest light cruisers—the Wiesbaden and the Elbing, the latter admitted by the enemy and described by him as a small cruiser; two other light cruisers (including, on the enemy's admission, the Frauenlob), nine destroyers, and a submarine. On this showing the enemy's losses were much heavier absolutely than ours, and the ratio of ships lost to ships available is now seen to be immensely graver for the enemy than for us. These calculations are reassuring. We maintain, however, the view which we took at the outset. It is readily possible to conceive circumstances in which we might have lost more heavily than the enemy and still have claimed the victory—the frustration, for example, of his "enterprise to the north," might have been an object worth great material sacrifices. There is no need, however, to indulge in speculation as to the ulterior motives of either side. The general character of the battle is plain enough. Our cruiser squadrons engaged the German High Fleet. They knew, undoubtedly, that the enemy at the moment was in much greater strength, and that the action in which they were embroiling him was one which would in all likelihood entail heavy sacrifices. These were worth while if the German Fleet was kept in the open until our battleships arrived. That object was in great measure achieved. Then was the German opportunity for a contest with the British battle fleet. The enemy showed no desire to take it. In spite of the heavy losses already dealt out by the British cruiser squadron, the German Fleet, as the King in his birthday message to Admiral Jellicoe says, "was enabled by the misty weather to evade the full consequences of an encounter they have always professed to desire." The retirement of the enemy immediately after the opening of the general engagement robbed us—we are following still the words of our Sailor King—of the opportunity of gaining a decisive victory. The enemy fled to the shelter of his minefields; our Fleet scoured the seas until noon on the following day. Which was the victor? When the operations are viewed in this way—and surely they must be viewed in the light of their result—the German celebrations of victory are amusing. We can at least admit that the German Admiralty handled its news more skilfully than ours. Only one element of depression remains to us, and that is the heavy loss of brave and skilful seamen, who perished in a gallant and successful fight.

THE KING'S BIRTHDAY IN DUBLIN.

On Saturday, the anniversary of the King's birthday, flags were hoisted over the different Government offices, banks, and other public buildings, and also a number of business establishments in Dublin.

THE HOME SECRETARY IN DUBLIN.

Mr. Herbert Samuel, M.P., Home Secretary, was again at Dublin Castle on Saturday. He arrived shortly after ten o'clock in the forenoon, and remained till one o'clock. He was in conference with the Under Secretary (Sir Robert Chalmers) and other officials. Among the callers at the Castle were the Lord Mayor of Dublin and Sir Henry Robinson, Vice-President of the Local Government Board. Mr. Samuel will to-day receive a deputation from the City Corporation on the subject of obtaining statutory powers for the Corporation to control operations and architecture in the matter of the re-building of Sackville street and other adjoining thoroughfares; he will also receive a deputation on behalf of the Fire and Property Losses Association, and this evening he will start for London.

KING'S BIRTHDAY MESSAGE TO CITIZENS OF LONDON.

In reply to a telegram from the Lord Mayor of London congratulating the King on his birthday, His Majesty says:—

"I warmly thank you, the Lord Mayor and the inhabitants of the City of London, for your loyal greetings and good wishes on this the anniversary of my birthday. The knowledge that I am in the thoughts of my people gives me confidence and help in days of trial.
"GEORGE R.I."

The only official celebration of the King's birthday in London on Saturday was the general hoisting of flags. The King received from all parts of the Empire telegrams of congratulation, many of which included expression of sympathy on the naval losses sustained in the North Sea. A family luncheon party, at which about a dozen persons were present, was held at the Palace. The visitors' book there was signed by an abnormally large number of callers, including various Ambassadors and Ministers representing foreign Courts.

MR. BALFOUR HONOURED BY THE KING.

The Court Circular on Saturday announced that Mr. Balfour had an audience of the King, when His Majesty invested him with the insignia of a member of the Order of Merit.

MR. JOHN REDMOND.

Mr. John E. Redmond, M.P., arrived at Kingstown from Holyhead by the mail boat on Saturday, and proceeded by motor car to his residence, Aughavanna, Co. Wicklow.

TWO STEAMERS SUNK.

Lloyd's Agency announces that the British steamers Dewsland and Salmonpool are reported to have been sunk. Both were unarmed.

The King has been pleased to approve the appointment of Rev. George Parmiter, Vicar of St. Mark's, Hull, to be Vicar of Dawley Parva, Shropshire.

The famous French aviator Gilbert, who escaped from Switzerland in disguise, arrived in Paris on Saturday. He was enthusiastically received by a large crowd.

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

153 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
SUNDAY NIGHT.

London has now quite recovered from the shock of Friday night, and is prepared to take the great naval battle in its true perspective. The shock was great and sudden, and general feeling was concerned with the number of lives lost. To-day it is recognised that the naval situation is unchanged, so far as Great Britain is concerned, and that the Germans have had to suffer losses as great as, if not much greater than, our own. There is no loss of public confidence or feeling of security—only regard for the many hundreds of brave men lost. General opinion backs up the action taken by Admiral Beatty, for everybody knows that the war cannot be ended until the sea power of Germany is irretrievably broken. A beginning has been made, and the sooner it can be carried further the better.

Some mystery attaches to the German losses, seeing that it is admitted that the Pommern and the Frauenlob were destroyed in the battle. Both these vessels were reported to have been sunk in the Baltic months ago. These losses in the Baltic were never admitted by the Germans before, and it may be that they are now revealing them in order to conceal losses of greater importance and value, in addition to hoodwinking the people. In the case of the Frauenlob there seems to be outside confirmation, but of the Pommern nothing. The losses incurred on either side in a naval battle can never be fully gauged by the opponent until some time has elapsed.

Among the many stories of the fight told in the Sunday newspapers is one published in The People stating that "in responsible circles in the City it was rumoured yesterday that eight German warships had taken refuge from the British Fleet in Danish territorial waters, and that they were served with notice which expired at noon yesterday either to depart or to suffer internment."

In one or two quarters to-day there was a disposition to carp at a statement being made by Mr. Churchill in connection with the battle, though none complained of the statement itself. It is a most reassuring statement, and it was a wise step to publish it. Mr. Churchill may no longer have direct association with the Admiralty, but he naturally has much inner knowledge, and has been provided with details that cannot be made public. Under such conditions as the present, precedents no longer count, and the statement may be welcomed for the fact and assurances it contains. Mr. Churchill is often called a "live" man. No doubt he saw an opportunity, and he is to be congratulated on the fact that he made use of it.

Mr. Churchill is no longer a lieutenant-colonel. He has relinquished his temporary rank in the Army on ceasing to command a battalion. This notice, which appeared in the London Gazette, is dated May 16. He still retains his rank as a major in the Oxfordshire Yeomanry.

The Observer, in common with one or two other Sunday newspapers, makes of the naval battle another opportunity to call for the return of Lord Fisher to the Admiralty. The demand is somewhat curious in the circumstances. It is acknowledged in the same article that the Navy were thwarted of conclusive triumph in circumstances still to be explained. That being so, the battle was to our advantage, even if it fell short of conclusive triumph. The old adage may be recalled about swapping horses. Things are going very well with the Navy—surely interference is uncalled for.

It is reported from various sources that Admiral Beatty is safe, but Admiral Sir Percy Scott has to mourn the loss of a young son. Lord French has lost a nephew in the person of the Rev. C. W. Lyndall, naval chaplain on the Lion. He was in the middle turret, and killed by a shell which struck below the turret and exploded. Mr. Lyndall was to have been married in London to-morrow, and Lord French was to have been one of the guests.

A few further details regarding Lord Kitchener's meeting with the members of the House of Commons are now available. Lord Kitchener cleared up many points on which doubts prevailed, and gave the assembly some confidential information that could not be given in the House of Commons. He was also able to give a frank and clear statement concerning the difficulties met with when war broke out with regard to our organisation for war. The Secretary for War was obviously optimistic, and left a most favourable impression on the minds of his listeners. There is a rumour that Lord Kitchener now thinks it a mistake that he did not have a conference with members of the House of Commons before.

It is curious that while emigration from Ireland shows such a heavy decrease, it seems to be increasing from the rest of the United Kingdom. Figures published by the Immigration Department at Washington show that immigration is quickening after months of stagnation. Italy is sending the largest number of immigrants, with Great Britain next, and the Scandinavian countries third. Thirty-three thousand foreigners reached the United States during March, against 24,000 in February, and 17,000 in January. Each of these months showed a considerable increase over the corresponding month last year.

The present Parliament must come to an end on September 30th, under the amendment to the Parliament Act, unless there is further legislation to extend its term of office. It is now June, and the Government have come to no decision on the point. The Prime Minister announced yesterday that the subject is under consideration. It is now unlikely that the war will be over by the close of the autumn, and there is, therefore, no reasonable alternative to a further extension of life for the present House of Commons. The difficulty of getting the votes of sailors and soldiers during the war is almost insuperable, and nobody wants a General Election with these men left out. It is evident, therefore, that the best way out of the difficulty is to preserve the present Parliament, despite the fact that it includes a few members who are hopelessly out of sympathy with the great movements now ruling the life of the nation.

Neutral countries have been growing rich during the war, but it is probable that a considerable proportion of the money expended by the Allies in these countries will return to them after peace is made. Much money is being placed by neutrals to funds for financing new construction in ships, railways, and other national improvements, and a large amount has been already placed on deposit in this country either in Government loans or in private banks for use in convenient ways. This money is to be used for contracts with British firms when the right moment comes, and thus there is little fear in influential quarters of a lack of orders when industry is once again allowed to follow a civil course.

Considerable progress has been made during the past few days in weeding out men of military age from the munition works under the control of the Ministry of Munitions. The process is a thorough one, and not limited to the unmarried or to the unskilled, for a census is being taken of all skilled men under twenty-five. It is most satisfactory to find that the men selected for military service make no bother, but go away at once to be medically examined instead of availing themselves of the two months' grace allowed them. If passed, most of them join at once, or, if rejected, return to their work. It is expected that soon there will be but few young men medically fit for the Army remaining in the munition works.

HOW THE FIGHT WAS WAGED.

SIR DAVID BEATTY'S SPLENDID FEAT.

ACHIEVEMENT OF THE WARSPITE.

THE GERMANS SLINK AWAY.

(PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.)

Our Edinburgh correspondent telegraphs:—In the early hours, a British battle cruiser squadron, under the command of Sir David Beatty, left its base, and proceeded, in the true Nelson spirit, to engage an upstart enemy. Admiral Beatty had many times before cruised in the vicinity of the present great battlefield, but the crafty Germans could never be lured away from their mined waters, with the result that the British Admiral, to use his own words, had to be content with "barging about the North Sea, dodging mines." But last Wednesday the sailors felt that "the day for which they had long waited had at last come." It was a beautiful fine morning, with a calm sea, and as the ships sped along the men were in high fettle at the prospect of a fight.

A POWERFUL ARMADA.

About four o'clock in the afternoon, when the British squadron was about one hundred miles west of the coast of Denmark, our advanced guards sighted the enemy, and it was soon apparent that he was out in great force, there being in all about one hundred ships, including at least twenty battleships and battle cruisers. In front of them were numerous squadrons of light cruisers and destroyers, and the whole armada was steaming rapidly in a north-westerly direction. At this time the fact has to be emphasised that the conditions were entirely in favour of the Germans, who by this time had, doubtless, become aware that only a fraction of the British Battle Fleet was opposed to them. Apart from the fact that the Germans were probably three times as strong as Admiral Beatty's squadron, they had the advantage of the light, in so far as they adopted a favourite trick of hugging the coast, and at the same time assuring a safe retreat. Then the atmospheric conditions took a change, which still further helped the Germans. A thin drizzle reduced visibility, and the British gunlayers were thus greatly handicapped, while, with the western sun behind them, the British ships were easily picked out on the horizon, whereas the Germans were able to conceal their strength, covered, as they were, by the coast of Jutland.

THROWING DOWN THE GAUNTLET.

Notwithstanding all these adverse conditions, Admiral Beatty, true to the traditions of the British Navy, never hesitated for a moment in throwing down the gauntlet to the German commander. It was soon made manifest that the Germans meant business. The small craft were soon brushed aside, and, with the big gun ships about fifteen miles apart, the first exchange of shots took place. Judging by the columns of water which rose around the British advanced vessels, there could be no doubt that the pick of the German battleships were hurling broadsides, and, while the famous new Hindenburg has not been officially mentioned, there is reason to believe that she was heavily engaged.

The British ships which took the brunt of this fighting are now famous all over the world—namely, the Lion, the flagship of Admiral Beatty, which the Germans alleged was sunk in the battle of the Dogger Bank fifteen months ago, but which gave a magnificent account of itself in this, a much greater battle. Then came the Queen Mary, the battle-starred Tiger, the Princess Royal, and the Indefatigable, the last being famous for the splendid part it took in wiping out the German Pacific Fleet in the battle off the Falkland Islands.

A PERFECT INFERNO.

From fifteen miles the range of battle came down to ten miles, and then to five, and by this time a perfect inferno was raging, as the opposing battle squadrons rained broadsides upon one another. At first the British gunners were plainly superior, and not long after the battle had started in earnest one of the big German cruisers was seen to receive a direct hit, and a moment later she was enveloped in flames, and sank almost immediately afterwards. Up to this time the most of the fighting had been done by German battle cruisers, but the vessels of the enemy's Kaiser class of battleships joined in the fray, and their smashing power gave the Germans an enormous superiority, both in ship and in gun power. It will probably be found, when the story of the batlte is fully known, that one of the deadliest enemies of the British battle cruisers was the German minefield.

ZEPPELINS AND SUBMARINES.

The attackers had also to contend with the danger from submarines and Zeppelins.

The minefield prevented full freedom of action on the part of the British squadron, which had, perforce, to fight in a narrow area, while the Zeppelins and submarines, being near their base, were able to operate in such a manner as to be a most important factor.

A DARING MANŒUVRE.

Having succeeded at length in drawing the whole German Fleet out of its safe quarters, Admiral Beatty, although greatly outnumbered, and running heavy risks, evidently determined to hang on grimly, in order to detain the enemy in full strength. It was a daring manœuvre in the circumstances, for in gun power the Battle Cruiser Squadron was no match for the Germans. But the superior quality and the tactics of the British Fleet enabled them to withstand the shock of the thunderous battle marvellously well. Had the positions been reversed, had our Grand Fleet been opposed to a German Battle Cruiser Squadron, it is the opinion of the men of the fleet that the squadron would have been blown to pieces. With a dogged pertinacity, worthy of the highest traditions of the British Navy, our cruisers hung on to the enemy, despite all the disadvantages and losses, sure in the hope that reinforcements were on the way.

REINFORCEMENTS ARRIVE.

The reinforcements came on the scene after the fight had lasted for about a couple of hours. Then there hove in sight the Invincible, and the Idomitable, and the Inflexible, Admiral the Hon. Horace Hood, the second in command of the Battle Cruiser Squadron, flying his flag on the Invincible. They rushed into action, and their aid came none too soon for the battered fleet of Sir David Beatty. Still, however, the odds were all in favour of the Germans, from the point of view of numbers and of position. The light by this time was such that the British ships were clearly distinguished, whereas the German Fleet, sheltered behind its mine-field, hung well into the shadow of the shore, and the mist provided a very difficult target for our gunners. Nevertheless the fight proceeded with a terrible intensity.

At this stage it was mainly a battle royal of big guns, and the conflict was stupendous. The Invincible, after fighting with the greatest gallantry, and doing considerable damage to the enemy, met her doom and sank quickly.

Further, and much more formidable, aid was now at hand, however, and Sir David Beatty was very soon relieved of anxiety when four of the battleships of the Grand Fleet—the Valiant, the Barham, the Malaya, and the Warspite—appeared on the horizon. With their participation in the fight the battle took on an entirely different complexion, for there was now something approaching equality in strength.

THE WARSPITE'S ACHIEVEMENT.

The Warspite bore the brunt of a terrific attack by no less than five German battleships or cruisers. She put up a glorious fight, and either sank or seriously damaged at least three of her assailants. In addition to such hot fighting credit is due to the Valiant for having rammed and sunk an enemy submarine.

THE GERMANS RETREAT.

Eventually the Germans regarded discretion as the better part of valour, and sought safety in retreat to their bases. Great was the chagrin of the men on Sir John Jellicoe's ships when they were denied a fight to a finish.

With the approach of darkness the bigger vessels ceased firing, but the action was continued by the smaller craft throughout the whole night, until the break of day, when our ships returned.

Wherever there is pessimism regarding the result of the big engagement it is certainly not among the men who took part in the fight.

"WE WERE LOOKING FOR A FIGHT."

NAVAL OFFICER'S ACCOUNT.

STRANGE GERMAN TACTICS.

PRESS BUREAU, SUNDAY.

The following is the gist of an interview accorded to a representative of the Associated Press of America on the 3rd inst. by a naval officer of high rank, who had had access to special sources of information regarding the naval action in the North Sea on the 31st ult. It is placed at the disposal of the Press:—

The naval officer said that it would have been possible to have anticipated the German account of the battle circulated by wireless telegraphy, but the Admiralty did not have details until Admiral Jellicoe reached port. Therefore, it frankly issued the information in its possession. The Associated Press is informed that future details will have even a more heartening effect than the news given out to-day. He gave the following details of the fight:—

We can only say that we were looking for a fight when our Fleet went out. The story that it was decoyed by the Germans is the sheerest nonsense. In a word, we engaged the entire German High Sea Fleet, interrupted their plan, and drove them back into their harbours. In doing this we sustained heavy losses, which we expected, but we also attained the expected result of forcing the enemy to abandon his plan, and to seek refuge, after we had given battle, in his own waters, near his coast. With the exception of two divisions, part of which was only partly engaged, the brunt of the battle was borne by the Battle Cruiser Fleet, and, with one exception, our Battle Fleet is ready for sea service. I must admit that we had exceptionally bad luck with our battle cruisers, but the loss of these great ships does not in any measure cripple our control of the sea.

The great battle had four phases, the first opening at 3.15 p.m., when our battle cruisers at a range of six miles joined action with the German battle cruisers. Shortly afterwards the second phase began with the arrival on both sides of battleships. The Germans arrived first, but before their arrival our three battle cruisers had been blown up, supposedly as the result of gun fire, but there is a possibility that they met their fate by torpedoes. Such close-range fighting by battle cruisers might be criticised as bad tactics, but our Fleet, following the traditions of the Navy, went out to engage the enemy. On account of the weather conditions, however, it could only do so at short range.

A WEIRD FEATURE.

The third phase was the engagement of battleships, which was never more than partial. This phase included a running fight, as the German Dreadnoughts fled towards their bases. All the big ship fighting was over by 9.15. Then came one of the most weird features of the battle, as the German destroyers made attack after attack, like infantry following an artillery preparation, on our big ships, but these onslaughts were singularly futile, not a single torpedo launched by them getting home. With the morning these attacks ended, and the battle ground was secured by Admiral Jellicoe's Fleet, which reported not a single enemy ship in sight. Until we get Admiral Jellicoe's complete report we can only give fragmentary incidents of the great battle. Among these was the torpedoing of the super-Dreadnought Marlborough, which is now safely in harbour. She must have struck a veritable hornet's nest of submarines, as by skilfully manœuvring she avoided three of these, before she was finally hit. Early in the engagement, according to Admiral Beatty's report, a German battle cruiser, after being hotly engaged, blew up, broke in two, and sank. Officers of the Fleet also report passing and closely engaging a German battle cruiser, which was left behind, while the British pursued the Germans. When they returned this vessel was missing. Judging from her previous plight she must now be at the bottom of the sea. This accounts for two enemy battle cruisers apart from those ships of whose loss we have their admission.

THE ZEPPELINS.

The Admiralty has reports of the sinking of four German light cruisers, and the Germans have acknowledged the loss of six destroyers. There is very good hope that the German losses are even greater, but we do not intend to make any estimate until we have complete official reports from our commanders, who do not report the loss of antagonists without definite evidence. The Zeppelins did not play the part which was attributed to them. Only one appeared, and remained in action a very brief time, retiring under heavy fire, evidently badly damaged. The weather conditions were such that it is doubtful whether any aircraft would have been of much service.

The enemy sprang no surprises. We saw nothing of any 17inch guns. No tricks were used which were not already known in naval warfare. This weather condition was the hardest bit of luck our Fleet encountered, as may be judged by the following paragraph from the official report:—

"Regret misty weather saved enemy from far more severe punishment." From the standjoint of the actual strength of the Navy, the loss of personnel, while great, is not serious, as we have plenty of men to replace those lost, but the death of so many gallant officers and men has caused profound grief in the service. Admiral Hood went down with his flagship, Invincible, in the words of Admiral Beatty's report, "Leading his division into action with most inspiring courage. Captain Cay, his Flag Captain, went down with him. Captain Sowerby perished with his ship Indefatigable, while Captain Prowse died on the Queen Mary.

With a fight like Wednesday's action occurring every day, we could stand the loss much better than the Germans. Our battle fleet is intact, while we still have considerably more battle cruisers than the Germans. We still hold the North Sea, where we have prevented the enemy from accomplishing any definite object.

VOLUNTEER TRAINING CORPS CASUALTIES.

Fund for Relief of Dependents.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The Executive Committee of this Association have taken steps to bring under the notice of the military authorities the fact that, in the recent outbreak, five members of affiliated corps lost their lives and seven were wounded, and have applied on behalf of their dependents that these cases shall be treated as if they were military casualties.

They have ascertained that in some cases the dependents have been left totally unprovided for, while in others the provision for the future is wholly inadequate.

The Executive Committee have, by circular letter, invited contributions from affiliated corps and their members, as well as from patrons of and sympathisers with the objects of the I.A.V.T.C.; but they are assured that a wider appeal would meet with a very liberal response from the general public, whose sympathies must be with those whose breadwinners have either lost their lives or have been permanently injured.

There must, of necessity, be some delay in securing such compensation as may be granted by the Government to the victims of this tragic occurrence, and, at best, the measure of compensation must prove inadequate. Meanwhile some of the cases are urgent, and the Executive Committee, therefore, appeal to your readers to assist them in their effort to afford speedy relief, in so far as money can bring relief, to the sufferers. Subscriptions should be made payable to the I.A.V.T.C. and will be duly and gratefully acknowledged if sent to the Honorary Secretary. Appended is a list of those received.—Yours, etc.,

FROM "THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY.

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THE PROPRIETORS OF THE TIMES.)

THE BATTLE OF JUTLAND.

The fuller accounts of the great naval battle which reach us to-day, says The Times, confirm the conclusions we drew from the communiqués of Saturday. We have suffered heavy losses in men and in ships, but after this, the most terrible action ever fought, our command of the seas is unimpaired. That is the one all-important fact which is past dispute. The German newspapers loudly vaunt the "victory" which they claim to have won. But where are the fruits of victory? They are limited to our losses on the field of battle—from which the High Sea Fleet precipitately retired so soon as Sir John Jellicoe's ships came up. We know now that the British Admiral swept the scene of action backwards and forwards all Thursday morning, and found no foe to encounter him. He then steamed leisurely homeward. Our main fleet is again ready for action, our blockade is intact, our transports and our merchant vessels pass and repass as before. Broad facts like these speak for themselves, and from all Allied and neutral countries comes proof that they are understood.

CONCENTRATED FIRE ON THE QUEEN MARY.

The Warrior, one of the correspondents of The Times gathers, went into action about 5.30 on Wednesday afternoon. At this time the enemy, who was superior in vessels and gunfire, was beginning to cripple the ships arrayed against him; concentrated fire had been adopted and all the might of the German Fleet was directed in turn on the Queen Mary, the Indefatigable, the Invincible, and the Defence. Salvo after salvo from the great guns caused death and destruction on the ships which were trying to hold the enemy until the time when the Grand Fleet could come. With an appalling road the Queen Mary blew up. A shell or fire had reached the magazine, and suddenly the battle cruiser went down to her blue-water grave. The officers and men, or as many as had survived the gunfire and the explosion, sank with their ship. Four midshipmen alone among the officers were picked up from the sea, and the losses among the crew were proportionately heavy.

THE SHARK'S DASH.

One of the most stirring episodes, says the Portsmouth correspondent of The Times, in the great naval battle was the plucky dash into the midst of an overwhelmingly powerful foe made by the destroyer Shark. Describing this incident, one of the survivors said:—"Right ahead of us and close at hand we saw two columns of German destroyers. We were racking along at the time, and our skipper took us at full speed right towards the enemy lines. There was a column of their small craft on either side of us, and as soon as we got abreast of them we attacked at close range and managed to torpedo a couple of enemy destroyers, one on each beam. All the time we were getting it hot. Guns were popping at us from all quarters, and we were firing back as hard as we could go, as well as using our torpedo tubes. Of course, a fight under these conditions could not last long for us. We had been engaged about ten minutes when two torpedoes hit fairly, one on each side of our ship, and ripped three holes in her, so that she sank almost at once. I and some others sprang on to a raft, where we stayed for five hours watching the battle—and there was something to look at. Zeppelins, torpedo craft, submarines, and big ships were all there. Shells fell like hailstones into the water, and we could see the small craft getting it badly."

THE BATTLE REVIEWED.

There is widespread disappointment (says the Naval Correspondent of The Times) because the long-expected battle when it happened was not a decisive victory. It was not fought as the nation anticipated it would be, nor did it have the results hoped for. They counted on another Trafalgar, and what they have got falls short of it. While it was recognised that a victory would probably be costly in ships and seamen, and that we could afford to pay highly for a decision, there is discontent because the heavy losses have been sustained without commensurate gains. Explanation is necessary, not on account of any loss of confidence in our seamen, their skill and courage, but because it is clear that the undertaking failed to achieve its object—the annihilation of the enemy's forces. The immediate cause of the encounter has yet to be revealed. When both the British and German Fleets took to sweeping through the North Sea they were bound to meet at some time or other. The essential need was that they should meet at our selected moment. It is obvious that the Germans were not anxious for a fight to a finish, or when it was joined they would not have hastened off so hurriedly.

THE STOCK MARKETS.

The Stock Markets, says The Times, were not much perturbed on Saturday by the news of the North Sea engagement. The recent buying movement received a slight check, and the tone was consequently rather subdued. There was no sign of any selling pressure whatever, and prices on the whole were well maintained. War Loan and some of the other high-class investments reacted a little, but in the speculative sections a number of shares continued to rise. The number of transactions marked in the lists was 1,800, as compared with 2,070 on the preceding Saturday.

FIGHTING ON THE BRITISH FRONT.

ENEMY ADVANCE TOWARDS ZILLEBEKE.

GALLANT CANADIANS.

THE STRUGGLE AT VERDUN.

ENEMY'S DESPERATE EFFORTS.

On the British front during the week-end there has been very severe fighting. South-east of Ypres the enemy penetrated our lines to a depth of 700 yards in the direction of Zillebeke. The official report pays a high tribute to the work of the Canadians, who are holding this section. Two Canadian Generals are missing.

The fighting in the Verdun region shows no falling off in intensity and fury. The enemy has made repeated converging attempts in the direction of Fort Vaux, but without any distinct success.

The Berlin report claims, however, the capture of many prisoners.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

Saturday night's British communiqué:—

Fighting of a very severe nature has continued without cessation south-east of Ypres, between Hooge and the Ypres-Menin railway. Following on their initial advantage obtained yesterday evening in penetrating our forward line in this neighbourhood, the Germans pushed their attacks during the night, and suceeded in pushing through our defences to a depth of 700 yards in the direction of Zillebeke. The Canadian troops, however, who are holding this section of the defences launched counter-attacks at 7 o'clock this morning, which have succeeded gradually in driving the enemy from much of the ground which he had gained. The Canadian troops have behaved with the utmost gallantry in counter-attacking successfully after a heavy and continuous bombardment. The enemy's losses have been severe and a large number of German dead have been abandoned on the recaptured ground. Generals Mercer and Williams, of the 3rd Canadian Division, who were inspecting the front trenches yesterday during the bombardment, are missing. Opposite the re-entrant of our line near Frecourt, north of the River Somme, a small party of the regiment raided the German line last night, bringing back a few prisoners with them. This party had a sharp engagement in the German trench, and suffered some casualties, but succeded in bombing several German dug-outs.

South-west of Angres last night we carried out a successful enterprise. Our party entered a German trench, disposed of the garrison above ground, and bombed five dug-outs before returning, without loss. To-day there has been a good deal of artillery activity about the Loos salient.

Yesterday our aeroplanes, favoured by fine weather, accomplished much successful work.

Last night's communiqué:—

Yesterday a squadron of 26 of our aeroplanes bombed some points of military importance. Considerable damage is believed to have been done. One of our machines was brought down in the enemy's lines by gunfire. The remainder returned safely. Hostile aircraft inactive.

Last night there was increased activity along the whole of our front. North of Fricourt, after a very heavy bombardment, a party of Germans, about 200 strong, attacked our trenches, but was driven back, with considerable loss, by our artillery and machine gun fire.

North of the River Accre, about Serre, two small parties of troops entered the German trenches, killed some of the occupants, and returned with slight loss. At Monchy-au-Bois and Neuville St. Vaast two more parties of our troops broke into the enemy's lines, causing him loss, and returning with prisoners. No fresh attacks have been undertaken by us.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

Saturday afternoon's communiqué:—

In Champagne, to the west of Mount Tetu, enemy elements which had penetrated into some small advanced posts as a sequel to an intense bombardment, were dislodged by our bombing counter-attacks.

In the Argonne yesterday, at the end of the day, a German attack upon a salient in our line to the west of the Fille Mort was repulsed after a somewhat sharp fight.

A second attack launched towards eight in the evening likewise suffered complete defeat.

On the left bank of the Meuse our position on Hill 304, and our second lines were subjected to a violent bombardment.

On the right bank the struggle continues in the sector of Vaux Fort, with the same desperation. All the attempts of the enemy against our trenches to the west and to the east were repulsed. Against the fort itself the Germans multiplied their furious assaults, in spite of the ravages caused in their ranks by the fire of our artillery and machine guns, which every time drove the foe back. Nevertheless, in the course of the night, parties of the enemy succeeded in penetrating into the fosse to the north of the fort, in the interior of which we are holding out vigorously.

Saturday night's communiqué:—

On the right bank of the Meuse there was no infantry action. In the course of the day the artillery duel continued with great violence on the front Thiaumont Farm-Vaux. In the Fort of Vaux the situation has not changed. The enemy has made no attempt to develop the advantage which he obtained last night

On the left bank of the Meuse our second lines were bombarded. The day was quiet on the rest of the front

Sunday afternoon's communiqué:—

On the right bank of the Meuse yesterday, at the end of the day, after a violent bombardment, the enemy made several attacks to turn the Vaux Fort from the south-east. A heavy attack, launched about 8 p.m., in the ravine between Damloup and the fort, succeeded in gaining a footing in our trenches. Our counter-attack, which was delivered immediately, completely repulsed the enemy. A second German attack, made this morning, against the same point, failed before the fire of our artillery. In the region west of Thiaumont Farm there was grenade fighting during the night.

On the left bank of the Meuse and on the rest of the front there was moderate artillery activity.

GERMAN OFFICIAL.

Saturday's Berlin communiqué:—

At noon yesterday the Wurtemburg regiments stormed and captured the height and ridge south-east of Zellebeke, south-east of Ypres, and the British positions situated behind it. We captured a slightly wounded General, one Colonel, thirteen other officers, and 350 unwounded and 168 wounded British. The number of prisoners is small because the defenders suffered particularly heavy and sanguinary losses, and besides some of the troops fled from their positions, and could only be reached by our fire. During the night British counter-attacks were easily repulsed.

North of Arras and in the sector of Albert the artillery combat continues. In Champagne, south of Ripont, our reconnaissances, in the course of a short enterprise, returned with over 200 prisoners.

West of the Meuse enemy batteries and fortifications were shelled with visible success.

East of the Meuse the French suffered another defeat. In the course of the morning a strong enemy attack against our recently-captured positions south of the Caillette Wood was repulsed. Further east, on the ridge south-west of Vaux, the French yesterday tried six times to penetrate our trenches, but all their attacks collapsed with very heavy enemy losses.

In the sector south-east of Vaux heavy, but for us successful, fighting is proceeding. On the eastern slopes of the Meuse heights we stormed the strongly consolidated village of Damloup. We captured 520 unwounded French, among them eighteen officers, and several machine guns. Other prisoners, when being led away via Dieppe, came within the range of the heavy French batteries.

Sunday's Berlin communiqué:—

The enemy delivered several attacks against positions which we had captured south-east of Ypres. He was completely repulsed. Artillery fighting north-east of Arras, in the Albert sector, continued again. Yesterday the enemy exploded several mines south-east of Neuville St. Vaast without effect.

On the left bank of the Meuse a weak enemy attack west of Hill 304 was easily repulsed. We captured one machine gun.

ENEMY DECLINES TO FACE ADMIRAL JELLICOE.

THE KING'S MESSAGE TO THE FLEET.

PRESS BUREAU, SUNDAY, 9.50 P.M.

The Secretary of the Admiralty makes the following announcement:—

Until the Commander-in-Chief has had time to consult the officers engaged, and to write a full despatch, any attempt to give a detailed history of the naval engagement which began on the afternoon of the 31st May and ended in the morning hours of 1st June would evidently be premature. But the results are quite plain.

The Grand Fleet came in touch with the German High Seas Fleet at 3.30 on the afternoon of the 31st May.

The leading ships of the two fleets carried on a vigorous fight, in which battle cruisers, fast battleships, and subsidiary craft all took an active part.

The losses were severe on both sides, but when the main body of the British Fleet came into contact with the German High Seas Fleet a very brief period sufficed to compel the latter, who had been severely punished, to seek refuge in their protected waters.

This manœuvre was rendered possible by low visibility and mist, and although the Grand Fleet were now and then able to get into momentary contact with their opponents, no continuous action was possible.

They continued the pursuit until the light had wholly failed, while the British destroyers were able to make a successful attack upon the enemy during the night.

Meanwhile, Sir John Jellicoe, having driven the enemy into port, returned to the main scene of action, and scoured the sea in search of disabled vessels.

By noon the next day (1st June) it became evident that there was nothing more to be done. He returned, therefore, to his base, four hundred miles away, re-fuelled his Fleet, and in the evening of June 2nd was again ready to put to sea.

The British losses have already been fully stated, and there is nothing to add to or subtract from the latest account published by the Admiralty.

The enemy losses are less easy to determine.

That the accounts they have given to the world are false is certain—and we cannot yet be sure of the exact truth.

But from such evidence as has come to our knowledge the Admiralty entertain no doubt that the German losses are heavier than the British—not merely relatively to the strength of the two fleets, but absolutely.

There seems to be the strongest ground for supposing that included in the German losses are:—

TWO BATTLESHIPS;

TWO DREADNOUGHT BATTLE CRUISERS, of the most powerful type;

TWO of the LATEST LIGHT CRUISERS (Wiesbaden and Elbing);

A LIGHT CRUISER of the Rostock type;

THE LIGHT CRUISER Frauenlob;

At LEAST NINE DESTROYERS; and

A SUBMARINE.

THE KING'S MESSAGE TO ADMIRAL JELLICOE.

PRESS BUREAU, SATURDAY EVENING.

The Secretary of the Admiralty announces:

On the occasion of the King's birthday the Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Fleet addressed the following message to His Majesty:

June 3, 1916.

H. M. the King, Buckingham Palace.

On the occasion of Your Majesty's birthday, the officers and men of the Grand Fleet, with humble duty and respectful and heartfelt good wishes, with loyal hope and determination that through victory to Your Majesty's arms, and to those of our gallant Allies, the blessings of peace may be restored.

ADMIRAL JELLICOE.

THE KING'S REPLY.

His Majesty was graciously pleased to send the following reply:—

I am deeply touched by the message which you have sent me on behalf of the Grand Fleet.

It reaches me on the morrow of a battle which has once more displayed the splendid gallantry of the officers and men under your command.

I mourn the loss of brave men, many of them personal friends of my own, who have fallen in their country's cause.

Yet even more do I regret that the German High Seas Fleet, in spite of its heavy losses, was enabled by the misty weather to evade the full consequences of an encounter they have always professed to desire, but for which, when the opportunity arrived, they showed no inclination.

Though the retirement of the enemy immediately after the opening of the general engagement robbed us of the opportunity of gaining a decisive victory, the events of last Wednesday amply justify my confidence in the valour and efficiency of the Fleets under your command.

GEORGE, R.I.

GERMAN UNTRUTHS.

OFFICIAL CONTRADICTION.

PRESS BUREAU, SATURDAY, 9.35 P.M.

The Secretary of the Admiralty announces:

With reference to the German wireless message to the Embassy at Washington to-day, containing a report of the speech of the President of the Reichstag, it is noted that the loss of the battleship Warspite is again officially affirmed.

This is untrue, the ship having returned to harbour.

The loss of the Alcaster (Acosta) is also announced.

This is not true, that vessel having also returned to her base.

The names of the three British destroyers not hitherto named, making the total of the eight lost, which were reported in the official communiqué issued early this morning, are Nomad, Nestor, Shark.

The statement in the same German wireless message, as to three German merchant vessels having been torpedoed without warning by a British submarine, are without foundation.

GERMAN OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

(PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.)

AMSTERDAM, SATURDAY.

An official telegram from Berlin states:—

In order to prevent the spread of fantastic reports it is again stated that in the battle off the Skager Rak on May 31st the German High Sea forces engaged the entire modern British Fleet. To the statement already published it must be added that, according to the official British report, the battle cruiser Invincible and the armoured cruiser Warrior were also destroyed.

We were obliged to blow up the small cruiser Elbing, which on the night of May 31st was heavily damaged owing to collision with another German war vessel, so that it was impossible to take her back to port. The crew were rescued by torpedo boats, with the exception of the commander, two officers, and eighteen men who remained on board in order to blow up the vessel, and who, according to subsequent Dutch reports, have been brought to Ymuiden in a tug and landed there.

CHIEF OF THE ADMIRALTY STAFF.

GERMAN SEMI-OFFICIAL ACCOUNT.

TRIBUTE TO BRITISH BRAVERY.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

AMSTERDAM, SATURDAY.

A semi-official telegram from Berlin says:—

In the naval battle in the Skager Rak, the Chief of the Fleet, Vice-Admiral von Scheer, was in command of the German forces, which consisted of the German High Seas Fleet, with Dreadnoughts, older ships of the line, battle cruisers, all the light units at present in the North Sea, torpedo boats, and submarine flotilla.

Vice-Admiral Hipper commanded the reconnaissance forces, which first gave battle to the British battle cruisers and light cruisers at about five o'clock in the afternoon, the whole fleets of both sides subsequently participating.

The day battle, in the course of which our torpedo boats repeatedly had opportunity successfully to participate in the fighting, lasted till nine in the evening. In it the enemy lost the Warspite, the Queen Mary, one armoured cruiser, apparently of the Achilles class, and several destroyers.

During the night severe torpedo boat attacks and cruiser fighting followed, to which the remainder of the enemy losses were due.

The German leading vessels alone destroyed six modern destroyers.

All reports from the German sea forces which took part agree in acknowledging the bravery of the enemy, in an almost continuous battle of twelve hours.

We must finally reckon upon the loss of the Frauenlob, which apparently sank in individual fighting on the night of May 31.

Five vessels of the torpedo High Sea Forces have not returned, but a great part of the crews have been rescued.

In spite of the unfavourable atmosphere, naval airships and aviators materially contributed to the success of our naval forces by reconnoitring and reporting.

A DEFINITE STEP TOWARDS VICTORY.

OUR SUPERIORITY NOT IMPAIRED.

STATEMENT BY MR. CHURCHILL.

PRESS BUREAU, SATURDAY, 10.20 P.M.

The following statement has been made by Mr. Churchill for publication. Mr. Churchill said:—

I have had an opportunity of examining the reports of the Admirals and of considering the information in the possession of the Admiralty. The following facts seem to me to be established:—

1. The naval supremacy of the British Fleet capital ships depends upon the super-Dreadnoughts armed with the 13.5-inch and 15-inch guns, and these are sufficient by themselves to maintain control of the seas.

Of these vital units of the first rank we have only lost one—the Queen Mary.

There appears to be no doubt that the Germans have lost at least one comparable ship.

If this should be the Lutzow or the Derfflinger, that vessel is a heavier loss to them actually and relatively than the Queen Mary is to us.

2. Coming to vessels of the second order, we have lost the Indefatigable and the Invincible.

These are of an entirely different class from the super-Dreadnoughts, and, valuable vessels as they are, they do not rank as primary units at the present time. A Dreadnought battleship of the Westfalen type would be a loss comparable to either.

The armoured cruisers Black Prince, Defence, and Warrior belong to the third order of ships, of which we possess a superiority.

The sinking of the two brand new German light cruisers Wiesbaden and Elbing is, in fact, a more grievous loss to the enemy.

In all these vessels the most serious feature is the loss of their splendid and unreplaceable crews.

The destroyer casualties appear to be about equal.

On these terms, we, being the stronger, are the gainers. Our flotillas have long sought such opportunities.

3. Our margin of superiority is in no way impaired. The despatch of troops to the Continent should continue with the utmost freedom, the battered condition of the German Fleet being an additional security to us.

The hazy weather, the fall of night, and the retreat of the enemy alone frustrated the persevering efforts of our brilliant commanders, Sir John Jellicoe and Sir David Beatty, to force a final decision.

Although it was not possible to compel the German Main Fleet to accept battle, the conclusions reached are of extreme importance.

All classes of vessels on both sides have now met, and we know that there are no surprises or unforeseen features.

An accurate measure can be taken of the strength of the enemy, and his definite inferiority is freed from any element of uncertainty.

The fast division of Queen Elizabeths seems to have vindicated all the hopes reposed in them.

I cannot record these facts without expressing my profound sympathy with those who lost their dearest ones. Many of the most gallant sailors our island has ever nurtured and some of our most splendid officers have gone, but have died as they would have wished to die, in a blue water action, which, when it is studied, will more and more be found to be a definite step towards the attainment of complete victory.

REJOICINGS IN BERLIN.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

AMSTERDAM, FRIDAY.

A semi-official Berlin telegram says:—

The brilliant victory which our Fleet has gained over the British has caused the liveliest joy and satisfaction among the whole German people. All the papers interpret these feelings. Captain Persius writes in the Berliner Tageblatt:—On the British side the losses were exceedingly heavy; on our side exceedingly small, and in proportion to the results obtained, extraordinarily small. Our High Sea Fleet, in an open sea battle, without any support from coast fortifications, gave victorious battle to the mightiest fleet in the world. The whole of Germany thanks the Commander-in-Chief and all the commanders and crews.

A Berlin official telegram states that the Army Command has ordered the beflagging of houses, and proclaimed holidays in the schools to-morrow, on the occasion of the sea battle off the Skager Rak.

THE KAISER PROUD OF IT.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

AMSTERDAM, SATURDAY.

To-day's sitting of the Prussian Diet was opened by the President, Count Schwerin, with a speech on "the grand victory of our High Sea Fleet over the greatly superior British Battle Fleet." The President read a telegram from the Kaiser, in reply to a congratulatory message sent him by the House. The Emperor said:—

"With you I am proud of our mighty fleet, which by this feat of arms has proved that it is a match for a superior enemy."

GERMAN CHANCELLOR AND THE FIGHT.

MESSAGE TO CHIEF OF HIGH SEA FLEET.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

AMSTERDAM, SATURDAY.

A semi-official telegram from Berlin states that the Imperial Chancellor has sent the following telegram to the Chief of the High Sea Fleet:—

"I beg Your Excellency to accept my heartiest congratulations on the grand success of the High Sea Fleet. Pride and enthusiasm thrill the whole of Germany over the fact that the fleet has now also had the opportunity to show a superior enemy, who considered himself invincible, with mighty blows, what Germany's sea power is and can do. The Fatherland rejoices, and is thankful."

The Chief of the High Sea Fleet has replied as follows:—

"I ask Your Excellency to accept the heartiest gratitude of the High Sea Fleet for your stimulating congratulatory message. The pride of the Fatherland, which is expressed in Your Excellency's words, gives us the hope that we may be able to contribute our portion to Germany's value in the world. This hope is for our fleet of importance, and an encouragement for the future."

SURVIVORS OF GERMAN TORPEDO BOAT.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

COPENHAGEN, SATURDAY.

The Swedish steamer Para has landed at Aarhus three German petty officers from torpedo boat V 48, which was stationed at Kiel. The Germans said that they were probably the only survivors from the torpedo boat, which had been sunk by a British cruiser during the sea battle, and went down in a few minutes with a crew of 102 men.

SURVIVORS AT YMUIDEN LIBERATED.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

THE HAGUE, SATURDAY.

According to an official report of the Naval Department, three German officers, three non-commissioned officers, and fifteen men of the crew of the German warship Elbing, and one British naval surgeon, who were brought to Ymuiden on board the Dutch trawler Bertha, were liberated in accordance with the Red Cross Convention, because the trawler Bertha, after rescuing the shipwrecked men, was in no communication with any warships. No decision has yet been taken in regard to the shipwrecked sailors of the German warship Frauenlob, who were landed at the Hook of Holland.

SPECIAL EXTRA.

THE KAISER ON THE "FINE SUCCESS."

(PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.)

AMSTERDAM, SATURDAY.

The Emperor William has sent the following reply to a congratulatory telegram sent him by the King of Saxony in reference to the battle in the North Sea:—

"Heartiest thanks for your telegram on the occasion of the fine success of our Fleet in the North Sea. I know how you feel with me in view of this event, because you have always shown the warmest interest in the development of our naval power."

The King of Saxony has sent the following telegram to Vice-Admiral Scheer:—

"I express to Your Excellency my heartiest and most sincere congratulations on the grand success over the might of the English Fleet. We all hail our proud Fleet, which, like our Army, has succeeded in conquering in an heroic battle a far superior enemy. In appreciation of your brilliant commandership, I confer on you the Cross of Chevalier of my Military Order of Saint Henry."

A VICTORY FOR US.

LORD BERESFORD'S VIEWS.

OUR LACK OF AIRCRAFT.

Lord Beresford, in an interview yesterday with a representative of the Press Association, said, with regard to the North Sea battle:—

"I have seen pessimistic views in the Press, and I have heard the same sort of views expressed with regard to the result of the action. There is no justification for them. Before talking of victory or defeat on either side we should study the objective. The British objective was to sink the German Fleet or compel it to return to its base, where it has remained impotent since war was declared. The German objective (so they have always said) was to meet the British Fleet in fair fight on 'the day,' of which the world has heard so much. The British 'looks-out' are the cruisers. We have no suitable airships. The Germans have a great advantage by using Zeppelins as 'looks-out.' Every minute of time in the report of a 'look-out' in a sea fight is a priceless jewel. The Germans can tell the allocation of our Fleet, while we cannot be certain of the allocation of their Fleets, unless our cruisers are in the radius of action. We must send heavy cruisers as outside scouts on account of small cruisers being driven in without getting information. A large cruiser can fight and get the information. The Germans could tell to a second when it was time to run before the Grand Fleet could properly engage.

"What happened? The British cruiser squadron, under the command of its indomitable Admiral, Sir David Beatty, found the German High Sea Fleet. With great gallantry Vice-Admiral Beatty immediately attacked a vastly superior force, hoping to delay it until the Battle Fleet, under the command of Sir John Jellicoe, came to destroy it. Sir David Beatty was right. There was no mistake either on his part or on the part of the Commander-in-Chief. Sir David Beatty held and engaged the High Sea Fleet with about fourteen vessels, all cruisers, but four of which were ships of the line—a brilliant performance!

BRITISH OBJECT ACHIEVED: GERMANS FAIL.

"The British won the action—they achieved their objective; the Germans lost their objective. We made a great sacrifice, only serious in the terrible losses of our heroic ships' companies. Personally, I feel that fact deeply. Many of my old brother officers in Fleets under my command were lost, and also many of the men I had the honour of commanding. When the Commander-in-Chief, Sir John Jellicoe, came upon the field the German Fleet put its helm up and made with all despatch for home.

"The Germans, besides having the information brought them by their Zeppelins, were aided also by the thick weather in their retreat, which prevented the British getting their sights on, and darkness set in shortly after the British Fleet arrived. Further than that, they had the advantage of being close to their base. We lost cruisers; we can afford them. The Germans lost battleships; they cannot afford them. When all is added up—losses of men and ships, damage to live ships, and casualties—I am satisfied that the German loss will be far greater than ours, and, in addition, we won our objective, and they did not.

"I declare it to be a victory for us, hard earned, but a victory. The grand traditions of the British Fleet have been nobly maintained, and our margin of safety remains. We have lost some ships, which we can afford, and we grieve at the loss of thousands of our best men, which we cannot afford. As I said, the Germans had a tremendous advantage in Zeppelins for 'looks-out.' We have no airship suitable for our Fleet, and to get accurate information we must stand to lose some of our cruisers. We should express our heartfelt pride and thankfulness to officers and men of the Fleet, and it is to be hoped that those who searched about to find a mistake will cease their mutterings.

NO MISTAKES MADE.

"Only one mistake has been made. 'Authority' here should have been first in the field with the news, and not let the Germans get the lead by publishing impudent fabrications. If 'authority' had published some such statement as this, the world would have known the truth. The German High Sea Fleet put to sea, and met with the advance squadron of the British Fleet, which at once engaged them against overwhelming odds, and held them until the main British Fleet arrived. The German Fleet then put their helm up and proceeded with all despatch to their base. Attempts have been made to find fault with the Admiralty. This is unjust, and calculated to breed anxiety. Any suggestions as to change are totally opposed to the sentiments of the service. Those who make these proposals can know nothing of these sentiments. The Navy is perfectly satisfied with its ruling authority. It wants no change. It knows that our able Commander-in-Chief is not interfered with in any way, either in strategy or tactics. He has a free hand. It knows that the conduct of the war is safe in his hands; that the Admiralty will give him anything and everything that he desires (with the exception of airships, which ought to have been supplied long ago, vide our weak point in the late action). The Admiralty discuss with the Commander-in-Chief his plan of campaign, and are doing all that in them lies to help him to victory.

"There is another point to be remembered. The serious damage done by our Fleet to the German High Sea Fleet will probably affect their whole plan of campaign in the Baltic. We must have losses and run risks in war. Both the risks and the loss were justified in the late action, and the British Fleet still remains the basis of success for ourselves and our gallant Allies. We pay a tribute of most profound respect to the memory of those heroes who gave their lives for their King and country, and we express sympathy to those who are suffering the agony of irreparable losses."

INVINCIBLE SURVIVOR RECEIVED BY THE KING.

The Court Circular states that Commander Hubert Dannreuther, R.N., had the honour of being received by His Majesty yesterday afternoon. Commander Dannreuther is one of the two officers reported saved from the Invincible.

MARTIAL LAW AT SALONIKA.

PRECAUTIONARY MEASURES BY ALLIES.

(PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.)

SALONIKA, SATURDAY.

This morning the Allies occupied the Telegraph Offices, the Prefecture, and the Port Customs, at the same time taking precautionary measures about the town to prevent the possibility of opposition. The Commanders of the gendarmes and police were relieved of their functions, and martial law was proclaimed. At the same time detachments were picketed all over the town, and armoured motor cars patrolled some of the thoroughfares. No opposition was encountered anywhere, except at the Telegraph Office, where a Greek corporal threatened a French officer with the point of his bayonet, but the latter's coolness prevented a disagreeable incident. Everything passed off tranquilly.

Tiredness

At the present time, when many people are engaged in arduous physical work, TIREDNESS is very common. And often the tired man or woman cannot secure the necessary rest.

There are others also whose brains are over-worked or worried so that they feel tired on the slightest exertion.

In the former case it is the muscles, in the latter the nerves that are tired.

Many people take drugs or stimulants to help them through the day. These give a pleasurable feeling for a time, but leave the muscles and nerves with less energy than before.

The only true restorative is food, but it must be concentrated so as to act quickly, and not overwork a tired stomach, and it must be capable of actually replacing the used up muscles or nerves.

Such a food is VIROL. It is absorbed almost immediately, and does not upset the stomach.

It supplies flesh-forming and energy-forming food, and also directly nourishes the tired nerves, thereby promoting sleep.

British Made and British Owned.

VIROL

Try a teaspoonful in a tumblerful of warm milk three times a day, the last being taken just before retiring to bed.

BELFAST LIEUTENANT KILLED.

Sub-Lieutenant P. J. Vance, son of Mr. J. G. F. Vance, manager of the Belfast Central branch of the Belfast Bank, and of Helen's Bay, was killed in the great naval battle off the coast of Jutland. He was a young and promising officer, and was recently promoted from one of the principal battleships to a responsible position on the destroyer Shark, which took a prominent part in the battle.

BELFAST SURVIVOR OF H.M.S. WARRIOR.

A telegram has been received by Mr. and Mrs. T. Allen, 3 Stranmillis Park, Belfast, from their son David, stating that he is safe and well. He was a Post Office telegraphist on H.M.S. Warrior, one of the cruisers sunk in the naval battle.

WE COMMAND THE SEA.

A SPLENDID AND GALLANT FIGHT.

MR. A. H. POLLEN'S VIEWS.

Mr. A. H. Pollen, the well-known contributor to Land and Water, and one of the foremost naval critics of the day, has given the following interview to the Edinburgh Evening Dispatch:—

"I observe with astonishment a general tendency to comment on the North Sea battle as if the Battle Fleet had suffered a heavy blow, as if the results were not satisfactory, as if it were an engagement rashly undertaken from over-confidence, with the natural result of heavy losses, and with no compensating gains. I know no more than appears in the two Admiralty communiqués, but surely the obvious interpretation of these should make us take a different view.

"On the material side the losses of the Germans are relatively far more serious than ours. Our capital ship strength is, in numbers, at the very least, probably 70 per cent. greater than the enemy's. We have lost three capital ships to Germany's two—probably three. Clearly at this rate the British Fleet will last longer than the German.

THE SALIENT POINT.

"The other losses balance each other, but at this stage of the war the material results of the action, favourable as they are to us, are of incomparably less importance than its moral significance.

"The salient point is this: The German Fleet for twenty months has tried to avoid touch with the British Fleet. For the first time we have had a chance of forcing them to fight. That chance has been instantly and gallantly seized. Naturally the opportunity fell only to our fastest squadrons and of our fastest capital ships. The battle cruisers are the weakest in defence. They are not built for a sustained action with heavily armoured and heavily gunned Dreadnoughts, but the importance of bringing the German Fleet to action is so great that Sir David Beatty was amply justified in taking great risks to delay the German Fleet until our fastest battleships could come up. Of course, he knew that he would even have to sacrifice some of his vessels to do this. The results amply justify the risks he took; for, apart from the German losses, the enemy has had once more to fly before a British squadron, and leave the North Sea to our undisputed command.

A SPLENDID AND GALLANT FIGHT.

"It was a splendid and gallant fight against heavy odds. The determination of the British Navy to fight always and at any cost has been vindicated, and, whatever lies the German Government may tell the German people about it, the German Navy know as well as we do that if they give us another chance like this it will be seized in the same way.

"For some time, apparently, the German Fleet has been playing about near its own harbours, ready to retreat into neutral territorial waters, in a kind of make-believe that it could enter seriously upon the North Sea.

"It has been playing a perilous game in Tom Tiddler's ground, and it has been made to pay heavily for its temerity.

"Viewed in its true light, this action finally decides the point of the command of the seas, because it proves that the German Navy dare not, because it cannot, dispute it.

"There is no other view but this possible of the action. It is the sting that the whole British Navy has for months been longing for. It was a unique opportunity, promptly and gallantly seized, and the result is in accordance with the hopes and expectations of all instructed opinion."

SIR JOHN MAXWELL'S VISIT TO BELFAST.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

BELFAST, SUNDAY.

General Sir John Maxwell, K.C.B., concluded his visit to the North of Ireland on Saturday evening, when he left by the limited mail train for Dublin. He arrived in Belfast on Thursday evening, accompanied by Brigadier-General Hutchinson, D.S.O., and Captain His Highness Prince Alexander of Battenberg. He was met on arrival by Brigadier-General G. Hackett Pain, C.B.; Colonel Sharman-Crawford, M.P.; Brigade-Major Eckford, and Captain Wilkin, D.S.O., Senior Naval Officer of the Port.

The reception of the Commander-in-Chief was of quite an informal character, and, apart from the military and naval officers mentioned, there were on the platform only a few of the military police and men of the R.I.C., with a district inspector in mufti.

On Friday Sir John spent an interesting day in Belfast, in the course of which he made an extensive tour of both Belfast shipyards, and noted the activities which are being carried on there. He was entertained to luncheon, together with a few friends, by the Lord Mayor at the City Hall, where he was received by Sir Crawford McCullagh, who was accompanied by his private secretary, Mr. F. W. Moneypenny, M.V.O. In the afternoon he visited a number of the leading industrial concerns in the city, including York street Spinning Company, Messrs. Gallagher, Ltd.; the Belfast Rope Works, and the Sirocco Engineering Works. On Saturday forenoon General Maxwell visited and inspected the camps at Ballykinlar, Clandeboye, and Newtownards, the U.V.F. Hospital, Belfast, and also the Victoria Barracks.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE BOWEN-COLTHURST MEMORIAL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I have read in the Cork papers and in your issue of June 1st that at the meeting of the Cork County Council on May 30th it was decided, at the instigation of the Macroom Rural District Council, to write to me to rescind the permission granted in January to erect a memorial to my husband, Captain Robert Bowen-Colthurst.

There is a great need of a pure water supply for the village of Carrigadrohid, the people having to fetch all drinking water from private sources at a great distance, and, as my husband gave his whole life for the service of others, it seemed fitting to me that his memorial should take the form that would be of public service. I, therefore, decided that the memorial should be a fountain in the village, and, on receiving permission from the Cork County Council, installed the water supply, which the people have used for the past month, through a tap placed temporarily on the site proposed for the fountain. I have ample testimony that the people of Carrigadrohid are very pleased to have the proposed memorial, and that the action of the various Councils is contrary to their wishes. I am very sorry that they should have to suffer through the action of a few ratepayers who live at a distance and have really no direct concern in the matter, but I have no choice but to remove the tap.

I may add that there would not have been any question of burdening the ratepayers, the whole expense of bringing the water supply to the site selected for the fountain having been borne by me.—Yours, etc.,

WINIFRED BOWEN-COLTHURST.

Oak Grove, Killinardrish, Co. Cork,
June 3rd, 1916.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—With reference to the action of the Cork County Council at their meeting held on the 31st ult., as reported in your issue of the 1st inst., rescinding their resolution of January last, giving permission to Mrs. Winifred Bowen-Colthurst to erect a memorial in the form of a water supply and water fountain in the village of Carrigadrohid to the memory of her husband, the late Captain Bowen-Colthurst (who was killed in action), I beg to state that the residents of said village, on the 2nd inst., forwarded a petition to the Cork County Council on the matter, a copy of which they sent to Mrs. Bowen-Colthurst. I beg to enclose you same—which speaks for itself—and shall thank you to publish it in the next issue of your widely-read and valuable paper.—Yours, etc.,

T. P. GRAINGER,
Solicitor for Mrs. Bowen-Colthurst.

Macroom, June 3rd, 1916.

[The petition, to which thirty signatures are attached, begins as follows:—"We, the undersigned inhabitants of the village of Carrigadrohid, do hereby vehemently protest against the action of the Cork County Council at their meeting on 31st May in rescinding their permission for the erection of a water fountain to the memory of the late Captain Bowen-Colthurst."—Ed. I. T.]

URGENT APPEAL FOR WAR SAVING.

THE PRIVILEGE OF PATRIOTISM.

The National War Savings Committee makes the following announcement:—It is evident from the correspondence which has appeared recently in the Press regarding the use of motor cars for race meetings, and the consumption of petrol by the civil population as a whole, that the fundamental basis of the present situation is overlooked by most of those who have written on the subject. The question at issue affects not only petrol and motor cars, but practically everything consumed by the civil population. The supreme need of the country is for goods and services for waging the war, and anybody who utilises unnecessarily goods or services at the present time is most certainly prolonging the conflict and thereby endangering the lives of his fellow citizens. If users of petrol, for instance, would consider the amount of moving and handling necessitated before petrol arrived at their garages, the Committee feel confident all would reduce their consumption to the absolute minimum.

The same may be said of the clothes we wear and the food we eat. It is the creation and movement of these goods and the services their creation and movement demand which is causing to-day the shortage of tonnage, delays at our docks, congestion on our railways, and consequent innumerable difficulties in the handling of war material for ourselves and our Allies.

Of money for the purposes of the war there is more than enough in this country if those who have it will spend only what is absolutely necessary for health and efficiency, and lend the balance to the nation. The Committee would appeal especially to those who are living in an atmosphere of prosperity, which is partly false, to try and realise what an appalling responsibility that very prosperity carries with it, inasmuch as but for the sacrifices of life and limb continually being made by our forces on land and sea this measure of prosperity could not exist for a single day. Many civilians watch our regiments leaving for the front, and wonder when they will come back and of what kind will be their home-coming. What all need to realise is that by dispensing with unnecessary goods and services they contribute, not only towards the efficiency of our fighting forces, but towards the chances of their earlier return.

There is no hardship in postponing needless expenditure till the war is over, and in lending money to the State at a high rate of interest. Rightly regarded economy and saving are the privilege, not the penalty, of patriotism.

At a meeting of all grades of railwaymen at Cardiff yesterday a resolution was passed, demanding an increase of ten shillings per week all round, to meet the high cost of living.

UNEMPLOYMENT THROUGH FIRE.

ADMINISTRATION OF FUNDS.

Some three thousand families who have been brought to need by the destruction of buildings and businesses in Dublin have been granted monetary assistance by the Committee who sit at the Mansion House daily to investigate such cases. A considerable amount of money has been expended from the Prince of Wales's Fund, and calls are now being made on the Lord Mayor's Fund, which totals over £3,000. The importance of giving work to those in need is fully recognised, and an important move has been made in the provision of a scheme to teach girls domestic economy. Instruction will commence on Monday at the Technical Schools, where a hundred girls out of employment through the effects of the rebellion will receive instruction in the subjects comprised by that term. They will be paid at the rate of 3d. an hour, or 6s. 3d. a week.

There is one very good feature about the administration of unemployment relief at the Mansion House, and that is the promptitude with which it is carried out. Applicants are required to fill up a form giving necessary particulars of their present circumstances. This information is checked and investigated by a Committee, consisting of Sir John Irwin, the Lord Mayor, Mrs. Cox, Sir William Fry, and Father Flanagan, who sit every day and interview the applicants. If an application is made in the morning, it is usually met or refused in the afternoon of the same day, and applications made in the afternoon are settled next morning. Nearly a hundred cases were dealt with between ten and one o'clock on one morning of this week.

Requests for assistance sometimes come from those who misunderstand the object of the Fund. There was, for instance, a woman newspaper seller who asserted that her business had been affected by the aftermath of the rebellion, while other claims were made on similar grounds; but the Committee deal with those directly put out of employment by the destruction of buildings, and cannot meet claims due to remote effects of the disturbances. Although proprietors of businesses ruined might with reason look for assistance, pending the receipt of compensation, there have been very few instances in which help has been sought, and these only where small or new businesses were concerned. Those seeking assistance are chiefly employés, and the number of those affected must be very large. More than 700 persons employed by Messrs. Alex Thom, for instance, have had to claim the help of the Fund; there are the workroom hands from Clery's—not the shop assistants, who are provided for otherwise; many tailors, working jewellers, caretakers and office cleaners, and a number of barbers. No fewer than five hair-dressing businesses were spoilt by the great fire. Some of these employés have now received a second grant. Many of the claims dealt with are those made by dependents of men who are in England awaiting trial, or were shot during the rising. Rather a strange feature is that some of the applicants do not show any haste to claim grants made to them, and cheques lie unclaimed sometimes for several days. One, at least, has remained unclaimed for about a fortnight.

"Gone Nap on Lotus"

"I wish we had all those Lotus shoes that were looted from No. 29," said the manager to Mr. Tyler, "we could have sold them over and over again.

You see, we are now not getting from the makers anything like the quantity we could sell, though they assure us they are sending us our share.

The fact is, women have gone nap on Lotus and are clearing us out about as fast as the shoes come from the factory.

And, when it is not Lotus, it is Delta they want.

Sure enough, they have found out that both brands are made by the same people.

I wish you would write the Lotus people and use your influence to get us more of their shoes."

The "different" Food!

Benger's Food differs from all others because it contains the means to partially digest the fresh new milk with which it is prepared.

This means much, because the inability to digest milk—and only by proper digestion is its nourishment obtained—is very common. Always use for backward Infants, Invalids, and Aged persons because even the weakliest among these obtain the full benefit of the milk, and all enjoy and thrive upon it.

From an M.B., B.C. "I have much pleasure in testifying to the value of your Food in the dieting of old age and dyspepsia and convalescence. I could not do without it in my practice."

Benger's Food is sold in tins by Chemists, etc., everywhere, prices 1/-, 1/6, 2/6, 5/- & 10/-.

FINANCIAL NEWS

LONDON STOCK MARKETS DULL.

EFFECT OF THE NAVAL BATTLE.

REACTION IN PRICES.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, SATURDAY.

The news of the North Sea naval battle induced a feeling of great caution on the Stock markets. No disposition was observable to be pessimistic about results, but members were inclined to wait for fresh details, and there was recognised to be a probability that further important events might be impending. Business in the circumstances contracted, and prices, after the improvement of the last few days, were reactionary in many directions. There was, however, no selling pressure, and the set-back was generally of strictly moderate extent. The gilt-edged group was sustained to some extent by the execution of investment orders posted overnight, but Consols yielded ⅛ to 57⅜, and the 4½ p.c. War Loan, at 95 1/16, lost the same fraction. Home Rails sagged narrowly here and there, and there were scattered fractional falls in the American market. There was another very big volume of sales of dollar securities to the Treasury, both the officials at the National Debt Office and the big brokerage firms remaining overwhelmed with work in this connection. The Treasury is now not buying until further notice "unquoted securities" apart from the representative common stocks. Canadian Rails sympathised with Yankees, but Argentine Rails showed fresh strength. Specialities, in the Miscellaneous market, including shipping descriptions, were inclined to react.

Several Colonial issues partly recovered yesterday's dividend deductions, scattered gains of ¼ to ½ being marked. Canada Fours, at 84½, were nearly a point up. New Zealand New Fours, which remained brisk, touched 81, but finished a shade under that level.

FOREIGN BONDS IRREGULAR.

In the Foreign market Russian Bonds were heavy, the Fives at 84½, and the Fours at 69½, each being ½ lower. Other Allied Bonds, however, held steady. The French Loan remained around 85. Japanese quotations displayed hesitancy at the opening, but subsequently advanced. South Americans were spottily firm. Brazilian Funding Fives rose ½ to 77¼, and there were some other gains of ¼ to ½ among Argentine and Brazilian Bonds.

AMERICAN RAILS LOWER.

The American department was irregular. Interest as during immediately preceding the session centred almost entirely in sales to the Treasury. Quotations did not move far after parity adjustments, which resulted in a majority of declines. Louisvilles, however, rose 1 to 135½, and Norfolks were lifted another 1½ to 135½. Readings and Union Pacifics fell a dollar. There were several falls of ¼ to ½ elsewhere.

CANADIAN AND FOREIGN RAILS.

Canadian Pacifics were moderately dealt in, and though closing over the lowest, marked a net fall of 1¼ at 183⅜. Grand Trunk issues marked several falls of ⅛ to ¼. The 4 p.c. Debs. rose ⅛ to 72½. The traffic for the concluding ten days of May shows a gross gain of £39,131, but there was one more working day this year than last during the period under review. Mexican Rails were dull and unchanged. Several Argentine Rails scored fresh advances of ⅛ to ½. Central Uruguays were marked up 3½ to 55½ on a single transaction. Armavir Tuapse Bonds rose 1¼ to 78¼.

INDUSTRIAL SHARES STEADY.

In the Miscellaneous and Industrial market, Shipping Shares, though still active, were less buoyant. Cunards were easier at 89/-, and Royal Mails are 112½. P. and O. Def., after being easier, rallied and finished unchanged. Khedival Mails concluded around 26/6. Armaments were distinctly firm. Pease and Partners rose ¼ to 14½. South Durham Steels, at 32/6, were 1/- up, and Vickers added 6d. at 36/6. The Supply group was spotty. Harrods rebounded 2/6 to 61/3. Lyons and Van den Berghs lost the turn. There was again a good business in Courtaulds, which closed steadily at 97/-, or 1/- under best. Brazilian Tractions receded ¼ to 62½. Nigers were rather top heavy, among Land Shares, and fell back 1/- to 38/9. Hudson's Bays eased 1/16 to 6⅝. Borneos gained the turn. Marconis met realisations, and lost 1/3, at 46/9.

LONDON MINING MARKET.

The Mining market had an uneventful half-session. Business was on a light scale, and there was no marked tendency. Among Kaffirs, Finance Shares, as usual, showed irregularity. Rand Mines reacted 1/9 to 68/3, but Goldfields Def. rallied 1/- to 28/-. Modderfonteins ruled firm around 17, among Gold Shares, and Modder Leases were better at 37/6. Knight's Centrals were better at 1 3/16. Kleinfonteins fell 9d. to 28/3. Chartereds did not move, among Rhodesians, but Tanks settled back to 2⅛. Diamonds were dull. De Beers fell ⅛ to 10 7/16, but there was no other quotable fall. Westralians were featureless. Base metal descriptions remained heavy. Tintos flattened ⅛ to 61⅛.

The following are the principal changes:—

RUBBER SHARES STEADY.

Rubber Shares, though slow, ruled fairly steady. The commodity further rose to 2/7½ per lb., and this was helpful. Rubber Trusts were a better market around 22/-. There were several mixed changes of 3d. to 6d. in the general list, but no feature developed. Straits Bertams were unchanged on the declaration of a final dividend of 15 p.c. for the past year

NEWCASTLE, June 3.—Wheat was neglected. Manitoba wheat fell 6d. per quarter; hard winter 3/- down; maize 1/- down; oats 6d. easier; flour 6d. down, and beans 1/- down. Northern Manitoba wheat, No. 1, 57/6; No. 2, 56/6; No. 3, 55/6; hard winter, 55/6; English, 55/- to 56/-; maize, 52/- to 52/6; oats, 34/6 to 36/-; beans, 57/6; flour, 44/- to 48/-.

CARLISLE, June 3.—The supply of oats forward was again small; trade was quiet at last week's quotations, viz., 12/6 to 12/9 per three imperial bushels.

CATTLE.

DONCASTER, June 3.—Owing to the continued high prices trade slow. Moderate show of English cattle, and better supply of Irish; prices firm to an advance. Milch beasts, £25 to £32; three-year-old bullocks, £22 to £25; secondary, £18 to £20; heifers, £17 to £23; drapes, £17 to £21, and young stores, £10 to £14 per head. No sheep. Only a small supply of pigs, which were dearer—Young pigs, 20/- to 30/- each.

NORWICH, Saturday.—Both the supply and quality of fat cattle were good, but trade was not quite so sharp as last week, prices showing a reduction, except for cows and bulls, which about maintained their price. Choice light-weight beasts made 15/- to 16/-, and heavy weights 14/9 to 15/6 per stone. Sheep were shown in rather small numbers, and the demand was good, a few choice light-weights making 15d. and others 13d. to 14d., while lambs sold at 16d. and ewes at 12d. per lb. Fair supplies of pigs, which were an easier trade at less money, bacons realising 12/- and in a few cases 12/6, and porkers 12/6 to 13/- per stone. Store cattle were offered in larger numbers than last week, while the quality also showed an improvement. Demand again ruled good at high prices, three-year-olds making £28 to £36, and others £13 10/- to £26 per head. Small show of store sheep, which sold well, ewes realising from 60/- to 80/-, and lambs 40/- to 51/- per head.

PROVISIONS.

LIVERPOOL, Saturday.—BACON—Advices from Chicago were again unfavourable on the whole, while arrivals here continued heavy, and Irish, Danish, and Canadian bacon was reduced in value. The market for American descriptions here in consequence continued quiet, with holders easy to approach, though the only quotable change in prices was a decline of 1/- per cwt. in short rib middles. Irish, Danish, and Canadian sides were offered at 1/- to 2/- per cwt. less money, and Cumberland cut of latter also reduced 1/- per cwt. SHOULDERS ruled quiet at the recent decline for all descriptions. HAMS were again inactive, but no further reduction was made in values of any description. LARD on the spot, under the influence of further weakness cabled from Chicago, gave way an additional 6d. to 1/3 per cwt., American refined (in pails) showing the heaviest decline, while little inquiry was experienced for any description. CHEESE quiet, and the tendency of prices was still in favour of buyers. BUTTER steady for Danish and the turn dearer, but Irish remained quiet and unaltered. EGGS steady, and Irish hen fully maintained late prices.

SMITHFIELD MEAT MARKET, Saturday.—There is very little wholesale trade done here on Saturdays, and therefore the day cannot be classed as a market day. Of the deliveries 86 tons were British bred, and 151 tons imported from the Colonies and foreign countries.

For the week ending to-day the total produce marketed or stored aggregates 5,475 tons, 43.0 per cent., or 2,359 tons being British bred, and 57.0 per cent., or 3,116 tons, imported from the Colonies and foreign countries, as under:—

OILCAKES AND FEEDING STUFFS.—LONDON, June 3rd.—LINSEED CAKES—The activity recently noted has fallen off during the past week, and though crushers are somewhat diffident, prices are steady on limited supplies. Ordinary London-made linseed cakes are quoted at £12 15/- ex mills, whilst superior quality and analysis 10 per cent. oil is selling at £13 2/6 ex mills. COTTONSEED CAKES are also quieter, and, whilst there are no offers of Egyptian-made in bags on the spot, there are still buyers for May and June shipments at £10 ex ship; whilst London-made from Egyptian seed is firm at £10 5/- to £10 10/- on rail. There is no change to note in DECORTICATED GROUNDNUT CAKES; whilst GROUNDNUT CAKES are steady at £10 7/6 ex dock, with very little offering ahead. WOOL.

LONDON SALES, Saturday.—Catalogues comprising 8,016 bales wool were brought forward this afternoon, including 4,389 bales New Zealand, 1,163 Punta Arenas, 940 New South Wales, 748 West Australian, 397 Queensland, 343 Cape and Natal, 20 Victorian, 2 South Australian, 14 various. Good attendance of buyers, and sales passed off with brisk competition at fully previous rates, finest merinos still showing a hardening tendency.

GLASGOW SALES.—Messrs. F. H. M'Leod and Sons, of Bishop Gardens Wool Stores, report as follows under date June 3:—The amount of business passing through the Scotch wool market during the week has been small. Buyers' attention is taken up at present with London sales, and there is also an inclination to wait pending the arrival of the new clip. Some parcels of this are now coming on to the market.

LEICESTER, June 3.—All fine wools continue to advance in value, and the present figure is one which would have been absolutely prohibitive a short time back. Merinos are at a very high figure, and fine crossbreds are also comparatively quite as costly. Medium and low crossbreds are firm, but have not moved upward in nearly such a degree as the finer wools. English wools are held for higher prices, which buyers are reluctant to give at present. It is fully anticipated by farmers that last year's prices will be improved upon.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

Generally speaking, the prolonged tension on things and difficulty in getting orders executed with reasonable despatch both from manufacturers and carriers is causing a growing pessimism among merchants and traders with regard to the near future. Grain markets throughout continue inactive, cautious, and depressed. Wheat, flour, and maize values experienced a further smart discounting over the week. Freight terms are cheaper. The world's wheat supply proves to be heavy, and quantity on passage to Europe at the moment is said to be a record. Cattle further greatly enhanced in value—say, 2/- to 3/- per cwt. Sheep the turn dearer, without being fractionally so per lb. Lambs sold 5/- to 8/- and 10/- each better. Milch cattle unchanged. Pigs 2/- per cwt. lower. Bacon markets firm for Irish meats, but lower for Canadian and States cuts. Lard shows cheaper tendency. Butter, with freer supplies in view, previous rates have become decidedly less tenable. Cheese trade easier, and prices of Canadian and States considerably lower, but finest white least discounted owing to scarcity. Eggs closed the week with drooping trend. Poultry prices hardening up again. Wool rather idle awaiting auction sales of 14th inst. Potatoes 5/- to 10/- per ton cheaper. Straw now at seasonable rates; but hay of quality dear. Sugar markets without special feature. London tea sales well supported for choice grades of all growths.

COMING EVENT.

Matinée at the Gaiety Theatre.—The performances of "Lady Patricia," a comedy in three acts, by Rudolf Besier, and "Half-an-Hour," a one-act play by Sir J. M. Barrie, postponed from May 6th, will be given at a matinee at the Gaiety Theatre to-day at 2.30. The proceeds are in aid of the Irish War Hospital Supply Depot and the Soldiers' and Sailors' Families' Association (Nursing Branch). Both plays are being produced for the first time in Dublin.

Moravian Missions.—A sermon on behalf of Moravian foreign missions was preached at the Moravian Church, Bishop street, yesterday morning by Rev. H. Lloyd, who gave some interesting information about the progress of Christianity in the West Indies, where he is a missionary. He related incidents to show the deep Christian spirit of the negroes, their devoted attachment to the Church, and faithfulness to congregational life. Fully developed Christianity must not be expected from raw races, he said, but the negro had the germ of goodness in his heart.

THE LAW COURTS.

LORD MIDLETON'S ESTATE.

REMARKABLE PROCEEDINGS.

Lord Justice Molony delivered judgment in Dublin on Saturday in favour of the defendant in the case of Lord Midleton v. Michael Ryan, jun., which had come before him at the last Cork Assizes on appeal from a decision of the Recorder of Cork.

His Lordship said it appeared that the defendant's father, Michael Ryan, sen., was in possession of the lands of Townparks, Midleton, containing 7 acres, 3 roods, and 30 perches, as tenant from year to year, under the plaintiff, Lord Midleton, at the yearly rent of £14 12/-, and he assigned the lands to his son, the defendant, on the 23rd March, 1912. On the same day an originating notice to fix a fair rent was served by the defendant, which came on for hearing before a Sub-Commissioner on the 13th November, 1912, and was dismissed on the ground that the holding was non-agricultural. On 10th January, 1913, the defendant served a notice of appeal against this order, but before the appeal came on to be heard Lord Midleton on the 11th February, 1913, brought a civil bill ejectment for non-payment of rent against the premises, and claimed that there was due to him £80 6/-, being 5½ years' rent up to and including the 29th September, 1912. The civil bill ejectment was in the usual form, applicable to a non-agricultural holding, and on 10th April, 1913, a decree for possession was obtained from the Recorder of Cork ascertaining the rent at the sum of £80 6/- mentioned, and this decree was affirmed at the following Summer Assizes. After the decree was obtained the defendant paid £14 12/-, one year's rent, and obtained a receipt on account from the landlord's agent on 27th June, 1913. The appeal from the order of the Sub-Commissioner dismissing the originating notice came on for hearing before the Head Commissioner on 2nd July, 1913. Judgment was reserved, and consequently at the date of the County Court decree and affirmance the question of the status of the tenant had not been determined by the Land Commission. The landlord, however, proceeded on the basis that the holding was non-agricultural, and consequently did not observe the provisions of Section 7 of the Land Law (Ireland) Act, 1887, but gave the decree for possession into the hands of the Sheriff for execution, and it was duly executed by the Sheriff on the 28th November, 1913. Assuming, said his lordship, for the purposes of this case that the decree was validly executed, the period for redemption ran from the 28th November, 1913, and consequently it became vital for the tenant, if he was to preserve his holding, to redeem the premises within six months from that date. Accordingly, on 27th May, 1914, the tenant tendered to the landlord's solicitor at first two years' rent, and subsequently three years' rent, and claimed the benefit of the provisions of Section 16 of the Land Law (Ireland) Act, 1896. The landlord's solicitor refused the tender, and insisted on being paid the full amount of rent then due, and the tenant, under protest, paid six years' rent of the holding up to the 25th March, 1914, and the costs of the proceedings, amounting in all to £94 8/10. The tenant thus cleared all the rent included in the ejectment, and the one and a half year's rent which had subsequently accrued. On the 19th July, 1914, Mr. Justice Fitzgerald delivered judgment reversing the order of the Sub-Commissioner, and holding the premises to be within the Land Law (Ireland) Acts, and fixing a fair rent at the same amount as the old rent—viz., £14 12/-. The landlord appealed from this decision, but on the 13th November, 1914, it was unanimously affirmed by the Court of Appeal. In the year 1915 there was some correspondence in reference to a sale of the holding between Lord Midleton and the defendant, which it was not necessary to refer to, but on the 8th January, 1916, the defendant served on the landlord a notice of intention to sell the tenancy, and on the 15th January, 1916, Lord Midleton served a notice claiming to exercise his right of pre-emption under Section 1. (3) of the Land Law (Ireland) Act, 1881, and he made an offer to the tenant of £42 for the defendant's interest. The true value of the defendant's interest had not yet been determined by the Land Commission, but in the meantime Lord Midleton brought an ejectment for the non-payment of one and a half year's rent, £21 18/-, which accrued due up to the 29th September, 1915, and on the 31st January, 1916, he obtained a decree from the Recorder of Cork for possession, with £1 16/6 costs. And it was from this decree that the present appeal had been brought. It was contended on behalf of the defendant that Lord Midleton was indebted to him in the difference between the two years' rent which ought to have been paid to him for redemption, and the 5½ years' rent which were, in fact, paid to him under pressure of the original ejectment decree. No question was raised as to the liability of the tenant for the rent which subsequently accrued due. Lord Midleton contended, first, that the proceedings on the former ejectment operated as an estoppel, and that he was entitled to retain his 5½ years' rent in spite of the provisions of Section 16 of the Act of 1896; and secondly, that in any event, he (Lord Justice Molony) was not entitled to take this into account in the present ejectment, and was bound to leave the tenant to sue Lord Midleton in an independent proceeding for money had and received, or in such other cause of action as he might be advised. He (Lord Justice Molony) was quite satisfied that Lord Midleton was not entitled to rely on the civil bill decree as an estoppel. The original ejectment decree was in the ordinary form (No. 19), and the judge never judicially determined whether the holding was or was not subject to the provisions of the Land Law (Ireland) Acts, and made no declaration in regard to it, and there was nothing to prevent the defendant having the full benefit of Section 16 of the Act of 1896. That Section applied to every case in which an ejectment was brought for the non-payment of rent of a holding to which the Land Law Acts applied, and in Spaight v. Baker it was held by the Court of Appeal that the Section applied to cases where judgment had been recovered and executed before the passing of the Act provided that the period for redemption had not then expired. No matter in what form the ejectment had been recovered, once it came to redemption the tenant was entitled to the benefit of the Section, and under the Section the defendant in the present case was not bound to pay more than two years rent up to the date of the commencement of proceedings in the ejectment, and whatever rent subsequently accrued due. As regards the balance of the rent claimed on the ejectment, he was not liable in any form of action whatever, because he only became tenant under the assignment of the 23rd March, 1912. Even if contrary to his (Lord Justice Molony's) opinion, the civil bill decree standing by itself would be an estoppel, Lord Midleton was met by another estoppel of a more powerful character. The originating notice to fix a fair rent was served on the 23rd March, 1912, and the order of the Court of Appeal affirming the order of the Land Commission fixing a fair rent was dated 13th November, 1914. Under Section 3 (2) of the Land Act of 1896, the judicial rent of the statutory term began to run from the gale day next after the date of the application, and as the application in this case was dated 23rd March, 1912, the statutory term commenced to run from the 25th March, 1912, and as from that date Lord Midleton was estopped from denying that the defendant is the tenant of an agricultural holding subject to the provisions of the Land Law (Ireland) Acts. Lord Midleton's right as regards his second contention would be determined by considering whether an action for money had and received would be against him in respect of this 3½ years' rent. If it was a mere voluntary payment the defendant could not recover it, but if, on the other hand, it was a payment made under duress, or some other form of compulsion other than legal compulsion, it was not a voluntary payment, and the amount might be recovered back in an action for money had and received. In his lordship's opinion the defendant on that day was liable for 2½ years' rent—two years' rent due under the ejectment and 1½ years' rent subsequently accrued due, less by the one year's rent paid on 27th June, 1913. Lord Midleton consequently received 3½ years' rent more that what he was entitled to; and his contention was that his lordship could not take this fact into consideration, but was bound to give him a decree. He (Lord Justice Molony) was quite clear that an action for money had and received would lie against Lord Midleton in the present case. In an ejectment he was bound to give effect to every equitable defence, and he held that while on the one hand there was 1½ years' rent due to Lord Midleton, amounting to £21 18/-, he, on the other hand, was indebted to the defendant for 3½ years' rent overpaid, amounting to £51 2/-. There was nothing in law to prevent him giving effect to a set-off, and he consequently set off £21 18/-, portion of the said sum of £51 2/-, against the sum of £21 18/- claimed to be due in this ejectment, and he, therefore, reversed the decree of the Recorder of Cork and dismissed the ejectment, with the costs of the Civil Bill Court and the cost of this appeal. His lordship said he would like to add that in a motion before the Land Commission the other day, as reported in the Press, some words were attributed to him as having been spoken in Cork which he did not use. When the appeal was heard in Cork it occurred to him that Lord Midleton might not be personally aware of the facts, and he adjourned the case in order that he might be communicated with. He was subsequently informed by Lord Midleton's counsel that he was fully aware of all the facts, and desired judgment on the law. His lordship made no comment on Lord Midleton's action then, and he made no comment now.

Serjeant Sullivan and Mr. G. Daly (instructed by Mr. T. H. Gardner Wallis) appeared for the appellant and defendant; and Mr. James Rearden (instructed by Mr. W. J. Barry) for the plaintiff and respondent.

EXCESSIVE ROAD TRAFFC.

Lord Justice Molony gave judgment in Dublin on Saturday in the case of the County Council of Kerry v. Henry Fletcher and Co., which had been heard at the Kerry Assizes. His lordship said the plaintiffs sought to recover £82 13s. 10d. in respect of extraordinary expenses alleged to have become necessary by the plaintiffs for the purpose of repairing the public road from Aghadoe Wood to Meeniskey Cross, and from the latter place to Killarney, and which expenses became necessary by reason of the extraordinary traffic conducted thereon by the defendants in carting timber during the years 1913 and 1914, and down to 9th August, 1915. It appeared that the defendants purchased a large quantity of timber from the trustees of Lord Headley on the Aghadoe estate, and had it conveyed on carts along the roads mentioned to Killarney Railway Station. There was no doubt that the traffic was of an unusual character and of an excessive weight, such as would be calculated to injure a road which had not been specially constructed or strengthened with a view to such traffic. There was no other timber traffic on the road during the period dealt with except a small lot of 160 tons. Under these circumstances the County Surveyor gave a certificate that it had become necessary to incur extraordinary expense, estimated at £82 13s. 10d., to restore the road to its normal condition of repair. It was contended on behalf of the defendants that the road was always a bad road, that it had not been materially damaged by the traffic, and that in any event such traffic could not be looked upon as extraordinary traffic within the meaning of the Public Road (Ireland) Act, 1911. His lordship, having considered the authorities, came to the conclusion that this traffic was extraordinary traffic, and that the weight of the carts was excessive. He was also satisfied that the expense had been incurred by reason of the traffic, and gave a decree for the plaintiffs for £25 with costs below and on appeal.

Coliseum Employés' Benefit.—A benefit performance was kindly given on Saturday afternoon at the Theatre Royal on behalf of the staff of the Coliseum, who were thrown out of employment by the destruction of the theatre in the recent trouble. There was a fairly large audience, and the entertainment was excellent. The staff of the Theatre Royal and the actors in the revue, "S'only a Rumour," were reinforced by artists from the Tivoli Theatre, and, therefore, there was abundance of variety. From the Tivoli there were the Four Royal Scots (ladies) in a vocal and instrumental musical act; the Marvellous Days (lady and gentleman) in a second sight entertainment. The audience thoroughly appreciated the lady's prompt and accurate replies to the gentleman's questions, when from persons in the pit or other parts of the house he took in his hand certain articles, and asked "What is this?" Lilian Goold, vocalist, and Wolfe Land, the "immaculate" light comedian, gave interesting "turns." The artists at the Theatre Royal included Mr. F. W. Warden, Mr. Fred Wilmot (presenting the last scene of the revue), Mr. Frank Hartley, juggler; the Stanlini Trio, instrumentalists, and Mr. Walter McNally, vocalist.

Rotunda Hospital.—A meeting of the Board of Governors of the Rotunda Hospital was held on Friday, 2nd inst. Sir William J. Goulding, Bart., D.L., presided, there being also present Mr. Trevor Overend, Sir Stewart Woodhouse, M.D.; Mr. Weldon C. Molony, Mr. R. Grant Pilkington, Sir William J. Smyly, M.D., and Serjeant Matheson, K.C. The minutes of the May board meeting were read and signed, and the minutes of a meeting of the House Committee were read. Payments for the month of May, amounting to £334 13s. 5d., were sanctioned, and after transacting routine business, the Board adjourned.

The G.R.'s in Beggar's Bush.—Mr. S. Dixon, Inspector of Weights and Measures, and Mr. L. White, attached to the Rathmines Ambulance during the recent rebellion, received on Saturday night several presentations from G.R.'s who were in Beggar's Bush. Mr. Charles Hey, who rendered first aid to the wounded in Beggar's Bush, which included several of the Sherwood Foresters, and who organised the presentation, gave an interesting account of the valuable work done by the Ambulance. Mr. W. Lawson presided, and other G.R.'s spoke in high terms of the help given by Messrs. Dixon and White, who suitably replied.
